LAWYERS, SHOW YOUR GREEN STRIPES!

BY COLIN DURRANT | CONTENT PROVIDED BY THE CONSERVATION LAW FOUNDATION

Lawyers are known for using a lot of paper, and now they have the tools to help them become better environmental stewards thanks to a new partnership between CLF and the Massachusetts Bar Association (MBA). Both groups are working together as part of the MBA's lawyers' eco-challenge to encourage lawyers throughout Massachusetts to reduce energy use and resource consumption.

The eco-challenge initiative asks law firms and lawyers throughout the state to sign a pledge to adopt a series of green guidelines developed by a task force of lawyers from throughout the state. Specifically, law firms and lawyers participating in the eco-challenge will be asked to take action on energy conservation; paper reduction; recycling; greenhouse gas reduction; environmental in conscious purchases; sustainable practices; education and support for environmental conservation.

The initiative, launched by MBA President David W. White Jr., asks lawyers to change the way they think and act while conducting business in order to conserve energy and natural resources.

The Conservation Law Foundation works to solve the most significant environmental challenges facing New England. CLF's advocates use law, economics and science to create innovative strategies to conserve natural resources, protect public health and promote vital communities in our region. Founded in 1966, CLF is a nonprofit, member-supported organization. CLF.ORG
